1. The airfield is west of Hsingkai Lake (132-44) approximately eleven miles from (? southwest of) Mishan (132-06, 45-35). It is midway between Huli (133-38, 45-59) and Linkou (130-16, 45-18).
2. The air strip runs east and west and is 2400 feet long by 265 feet wide. Large planes can land on the field, which is equipped with electric signal installations and radio. There are four hangars and some one-story buildings occupied by students on the west side of the field. South of the field there is a two-story office building. An oil depot has been constructed on the shore of the lake and is connected directly with the airfield by a newly-constructed highway. Defense works and anti-aircraft batteries, manned by 120 guards, have been installed in and around the field.
